CS 101-04-20F: Website Construction

Assignment 6
Due: Monday 5 October 2020 10:00 A.M. EDT

For this web page, you are to imagine that you are a record producer promoting an album. You can use an already existing album if you wish, or you can invent one of your own. You must use a table layout for your page with at least three rows and at least three columns. You have creative freedom with your layout, but it must be interesting. Not all rows should have the same number of columns. Not all columns should have the same number of rows.

The cells in your table should be formatted differently from each other. Each should contain information on some facet of the album. Singers, band members, producers, composers, relevant links (that sort of thing). (Since you may well be inventing the singers, etc., these "relevant links" don't actually have to go anywhere.)

Make sure that any images or multimedia files are stored in a special folder

Your webpage needs to be stored in your web folder, along with a menu page or it won't be visible from the web. The menu page needs to be in the top level of your web folder. Your webpage itself should be in a folder called "HW6" in the top level of your web folder.

I also need a second copy of it in your CS101-04-20F folder, so that I can grade it and make comments. Create a folder called "HW6" in the top level of your CS101-04-20F folder and place a copy of your webpage in that folder. Also place a (possibly empty) file or folder called "DONE" in this folder. When I see the DONE file in your HW6 folder, I will know to grade your assignment. Note: Your file must be called "DONE", exactly. It can't be called "done" or "DONE.txt" or anything like that. DO NOT put a copy of your multimedia folder in your CS101-04-20F folder. That should be in your web folder only.

Your menu page needs to be in your web folder, but NOT your CS101-04-20F folder.
Your multimedia folder needs to be in your web folder, but NOT your CS101-04-20F folder.
Your DONE file needs to be in your HW6 folder within your CS101-04-20F folder, but NOT in your web folder.
Your assignment has to be in an HW6 folder in BOTH your web folder and your CS101-04-20F folder.
